WORKSHOP

Are you an emerging researcher in the field of transnational repression? One resource the TRP seeks to provide is mentorship for younger scholars doing research on transnational repression. If you would like to present your work and receive feedback from scholars in the field, please fill out the interest form below and we can arrange for an interactive workshop with discussants. This is an opportunity to present your research and receive constructive feedback from experts. This unique experience allows participants to refine conceptual and methodological approaches, enhance presentation skills, and connect with the broader academic community in the field.

Please complete the form to register. We will be in touch after reviewing the submitted information.
